Fiction To Trust is produced by OZZ Media Corp, a company created in the world of fiction by OZZ O'Brien, a master banker who takes us on a journey around the world to build the Fix-It-System to fix the systems that improve our lives and the business that help.

The OZZ Mission

To build trust in the systems we fix by testing ideas with people before they create friction, so future plans better connect with the lives they're meant to improve.

The OZZ Vision

To build OZZbox3.com, the Fix-It-System, with strategic narratives and true fiction to trust that guides us.

OZZbox3.com is a Fix-It-System to fix the systems that improve people's lives and the businesses that help them because we found ways to trust each other. This is the journey we take with fictional characters to find our way in the world. Join a true fiction narrative universe they create to fix the systems that aren't equipping you with what you need to achieve your potential. Build trust in the system. Bring your future home.

Free Books is the fiction you follow to fix the system. It is the means by which you connect with businesses you can actually trust; the guide we follow to build a Fix-It-System comprised by three web sites, three true fiction stories, and three data tools, each piece playing its part.

Three Data-Collection Tools

Three data-collection tools are technology tools that enable inputs from audiences outside the boardroom through web sites in the Fix-It-System:

- As each site develops, and each story develops, so do the data collection tools, which begin with basic plug-ins at OZZfiles.com, and evolve into technologies unimaginable depending on the timeline
- Will accelerate as Super Intelligence advances
- As technology develops so will sophistication of data and the potential to quantify qualitative results for conversion into an asset that can be integrated into corporate balance sheets
- Technology baseline is driven by research studies including the 2014 UT Austin/Princeton study, "When Small Words Foretell Academic Success”
    - Examines power of words and their impact on future success
    - OZZ is built on this philosophy that word usage leads to success
    - OZZ exists to share it and the success it builds by making trust an asset both sides value, by building the Fix-It-System

After confirming the company director leadership group and a single point of contact, three primary goals take shape:

1. Test corporate strategic narratives to identify systemic trust issues
2. Assess potential solutions and partners inside and outside boardroom
3. Convert data into a corporate asset that both sides value

Trust the system by fixing it with fiction
