Banker Brief

After discovering a story about a guy who got robbed by one of his banks, a City of London bank executive named OZZ O'Brien shines light on the underground headquarters of his bank and the nefarious games played by the rogue group of shareholders controlling it. After negotiations with a writer, OZZ creates OZZfiles.com to reach out to people around the world who are committed to helping each other succeed one idea at a time.

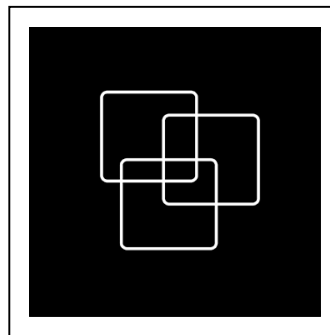

Barker Brief

Set in a failing syndicated radio station owned by O'Brien's communication arm, TheirMedia.com, the writer behind Mission Briefs, Keiron McQuaid promotes his work. The host of the show attempts to destroy his credibility. Keiron won't quit.

Battle Brief

After shutting down his failing whiskey business to seek revenge against the bank that destroyed it, a writer finds a much greater purpose in helping each other succeed one idea at a time. His media company called OZZmediacorp.com expands.

Mission Go

Mission Go is how souls from around the world tell corporations about their hopes and dreams. OZZ clients demonstrate how their strategic plans offer systems that enable people. Feedback and refinement is achieved through everything from socials for face-to-face connections, and to tailor-made film and music that evokes emotions around future building for each of us.

Mission Maps

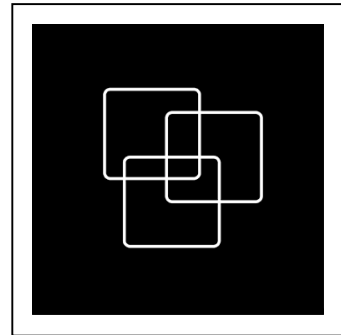

Mission Map is executive proprietary process that adapts strategic plans into a fictional journey about a bank executive on a mission to shape the future with us both inside and outside the boardroom.

Mission Briefs

Client strategic plans help find enabling audiences via the Mission Briefs series at OZZbox3.com.

While a fictional bank executive undergoes his mission to shape the future with us, corporations align plans with consumers, enabling systems that enable souls inside and outside the boardroom.
